

THE JUG IS UP.

They Are About Ready to Concede the Victory to Carlisle.

The Kentucky Crowd Exultant and Tawling Lustily on the Back Seats.

A Day, and Night of Wild Excitement and Furious Wire Working.

"Business interests" have been no more powerful in cheering Mr. Randall than the "solid south" cry. Yesterday was another day of the same kind. Mr. Randall's friends became anxious quite early in the morning, and there was another attempt made at a combination with Mr. Cox, but it was without immediate result. Sixteen of the New York members held a caucus at noon, and had a strategy session for an hour, but adjourned at 8 o'clock without doing any business. It was immediately concluded that the adjournment was had to give time for trades and the events of the evening confirmed the conclusion. At 8 o'clock sixteen democratic congressmen from New York met to decide what they should do for the day and the events of the evening. Present, of course, and the four other absentees were Muller and Arnold, who are both in the city, and Rogers and Robinson, who were not yet arrived. The conference lasted more than two hours, the vote upon the proposal to support Mr. Cox standing always 11 to 5. As the best possible compromise it was finally agreed to support Mr. Cox, and the events of the evening confirmed the conclusion. As the best possible compromise it was finally agreed to support Mr. Cox, and the events of the evening confirmed the conclusion.

Mr. Carlisle was in the lobby at Willard's when the caucus adjourned, and was asked his opinion of the result. "It will not work," said he. "My western friends decline to be made cat's paws of in that fashion. I have not the slightest fear of Mr. Carlisle's transfer his entire strength to Mr. Cox."

"He cannot. Some of them can undoubtedly be transferred, but not enough of them to elect Mr. Cox."

The sharp practice of the five New Yorkers was generally condemned by the Carlisle men last night, and it served to make their ranks more compact. The Carlisle men, however, will try to make their vote over to Cox, but the Carlisle men insist that it will be a failure, because Randall's southern support will not permit themselves to be handed over in that manner.

Another bit of interesting information gleaned after the caucus, was that in the New York delegation would divide 11 for Randall to 5 for Carlisle, instead of 10 for Randall to 5 for Carlisle, as they have been previously counted.

It was nearly 11 o'clock before any definite information was received from the committee. The Carlisle men, however, were not in the lobby of the hotel, and it came to be like a damp east wind, and took the steam out of the faithful few who lingered for cheering words of comfort. The Carlisle men were not in the lobby of the hotel, and it came to be like a damp east wind, and took the steam out of the faithful few who lingered for cheering words of comfort.

While the crowd took in this intelligence and melted away, up stairs in Mr. Randall's rooms there was a decided effort to make a place for the Carlisle men. Mr. Randall will yet be speaker of the house of representatives in the forty-eighth congress.

After conceding to the southern members the power to organize the house, fashion its committees, determine its policy and conduct its business, the Carlisle men, however, were not in the lobby of the hotel, and it came to be like a damp east wind, and took the steam out of the faithful few who lingered for cheering words of comfort.

A REPUBLICAN reporter asked Col. Conde, the St. Louis friend of Tilden, who is here at the hotel, what he thought of the situation. "Never saw such a campaign but once before in my life," said the colonel. Then he was asked what he thought of the situation. "Never saw such a campaign but once before in my life," said the colonel.

Another "dogger" of a little greater size, addressed "to the democratic representatives" and signed "Reform Democrat," was extensively circulated. It contains the usual charges against the Carlisle men, and is mostly devoted to the necessity for a repeal of the "infernal" revenue tax on whisky and tobacco, which it states comes largely from the Carlisle men.

At the National last night the excitement was at fever heat. The wide lobby was filled with a densely packed mass of men, and along the stairs and in the corridor in front of Mr. Randall's parlors there were little groups strung along, conversing in low, anxious tones. Downstairs there was a heavy sprinkling of Philadelphia dealers and $10 a day men, who held forth in blatant tones. Mr. Randall was content to win. Occasionally the strident voice of Squire Bill McMillen rose above the din, as that estimable statesman elbowed his way through the throng, followed by the mute admiring gaze of his henchmen, who evidently labored under the delusion that a campaign for the speakership was to be conducted and won by the Carlisle men.

Mr. Randall's Pennsylvania following depreciated the appearance of these recruits to his banner, and did not hesitate to say that they were a disgrace to the Carlisle men. The Carlisle men, however, were not in the lobby of the hotel, and it came to be like a damp east wind, and took the steam out of the faithful few who lingered for cheering words of comfort.

PHELPS-KEIFER.

The Ex-Speaker Pays His Respects to the "Corrupt" New York Papers.

He Expresses Himself with Freedom About Some Shams, and Makes a Manly Defense of His Character and His Official Acts.

A Decidedly Readable Contribution to Current Political Literature.

The following is the correspondence which has passed between Congressman William Walter Phelps and Ex-Speaker William W. Phelps: PHILADELPHIA, N. J., Nov. 17, 1883.—Dear Sir: I write to ask of you a sacrifice in the interest of the party, and, therefore, as you are a Republican, I have been charged with the duty of writing you.

I have not the honor of your acquaintance, and I am, therefore, not acquainted with the proper time to write you. I am, however, a Republican, and I am, therefore, not acquainted with the proper time to write you. ## THE WINDSOR THEATER FIRE.

The Losses as Far as Ascertained—Crowds Viewing the Ruins.

NEW YORK, Nov. 30.—Crowds of curious seekers viewed the ruins of the Windsor theater this morning. There are calculations on all sides that the fire did not break out during the performance. The losses so far as could be ascertained are as follows: The theater building, Wm. A. Martin owner, $200,000; insured to the amount of two-thirds, it was, in a number of companies. John Stevens, lessee, loss, $17,000; partly insured. The individual losses of actors and employees on wardrobe, etc., are considerable, but the amount cannot be ascertained. Hartman's hotel, J. Kierner proprietor, 45 and 47 Broadway, loss, $10,000; insured partly. Louis Benken, restaurant, 73 Bowery, loss, $5,000; insured.
